SIR,

THE Government of India have reason to suppose that the native population at large in the various provinces is insufficiently aware of the existence in this country of an institution where persons suffering from the bites of rabid animals can be treated according to M. Pasteur's method.

It seems to the Government of India not unlikely that avoidable suffering and mortality results from such ignorance. I am to suggest that, if no objection, the necessary instructions should be issued to all medical subordinates in charge of out-lying dispensaries in to take every suitable opportunity of acquainting patients suffering from such injuries with the advantages of the anti-rabic treatment offered at the Pasteur Institute established at Kasauli in August 1900.
